

Hi gemini, tell me in 3 bullet points what you can do that most chatbots can't

Here are three things I can do that set me apart from most standard chatbots:

Process massive data natively (1-million+ token context window): I can read, analyze, and reason across massive amounts of data at once. You can upload an entire coding codebase, a massive text document, or up to an hour of video, and I can pinpoint specific details or summarize the content accurately.

Generate real-time interactive interfaces: Instead of just responding with flat blocks of text, I can dynamically code and render custom user interfaces, mini-applications, and visual simulations (Generative UI) right inside our chat so you can interact with data directly.

Deep integration across the Google ecosystem: I connect natively with Google Workspace apps. I can pull, organize, and act on information directly from your Gmail, Google Docs, Drive, Maps, and YouTube, essentially functioning as an automated personal agent.
